

Salimah Lalji
Senior Subcontracts Manager, Global Strategic Sourcing
CAE

Polyglot and a fine strategist, Salimah Lalji has over 17 years of extensive aerospace and international contract negotiation experience. Her aerospace career began at Bombardier, where she spent 14 years negotiating multi-million dollar contracts, related to civil and military programs, with worldwide Government officials.

Salimah joined CAE in 2018 where she has cultivated subcontractor relationships with large international organizations. Salimah serves as a member on CAE's Professional Women's Network Steering Committee and CAE's Diversity and Inclusion Steering Committee, where she leads the Global Strategic Sourcing Diversity and Inclusion team to enhance supplier diversity within CAE.

Before starting her career in aerospace, Salimah was appointed by the Minister of Environment of Quebec as Director of the Minister's riding office, where she provided strategic counsel to the Minister and served the constituents.

A highly motivated team leader, mentor and collaborator, Salimah has also volunteered with external organizations such as His Highness the Aga Khan Council for Ottawa, Conciliation and Arbitration Board for Quebec and the Maritime provinces, and Focus Humanitarian Assistance. Salimah was also recently appointed by the Minister of Education of Quebec to sit on the Board of Directors of Cegep de Saint-Laurent in Montreal.

She is called to the bar of Quebec.
